

ADDICTIONS AND MENTAL HEALTH (ADMH)

Transform lives with a rewarding career in mental health care

Empower yourself with the knowledge and skills you need to be the catalyst for change in the lives of those struggling with addiction and mental health issues. In this client-centred and culturally-relevant program, courses in addiction, mental health disorders, treatment, prevention, counselling, and case management will give you the tools to deliver frontline care to diverse groups and individuals.

Your third semester is a six-week field placement or capstone project where you'll apply your skills to real-world active cases and become part of a professional care team, supporting those living with mental health and addictions concerns.

Program highlights

- Combination of theory and practical learning
- Choice of placement or capstone project in the final semester followed by a debriefing
- Optional opportunities to participate in training relevant to the field, which may include Applied Suicide Intervention Skills Training, Nonviolent Crisis Intervention Training, and Naloxone training
- Complete all formal education hours required for voluntary certification with Canadian Addiction Counsellors Certification Federation (CACCF)
