

SOCIAL SERVICES WORKER - INDIGENOUS SPECIALIZATION (SSIS)

Come and join us in this journey where you will transcend into a professional Social Service Worker, with Indigenous Specialization. You will learn Social Service Worker skills, ethics, theory, Anishnabek/Indigenous Teachings and have access to Elders and Knowledge Keepers. You will have much opportunity to practice your skills while be guided through the process. As you grow and transcend in the program, you will be well prepared to serve your communities in a good way.

Impact the lives of Indigenous individuals and communities.

This program delivers a client-centred approach that is culturally-relevant and prepares both Indigenous and non-Indigenous students to work in the human services field. Become an effective counsellor through case studies and real counselling sessions, communications seminars, theoretical concepts, guest speakers, and fieldwork that is culturally aware and respectful of the realities faced by Indigenous peoples.

You'll learn to demonstrate consistent ethical, legal, and professional responsibility while adhering to social work values and principles. The Indigenous specialization sets you apart in the social services field with enhanced knowledge and the wisdom to help create a culturally safe environment for clients.

Program highlights

- Learn interprofessional skills from Anishnabeg holistic perspective
- 2 placements with community organizations
- Recognized by Ontario College of Social Workers & Social Service Workers
- Qualified as a Registered Social Service Worker in Ontario after graduation
